City Police to crack down on non-ISI helmets from Feb. 1

- Bengaluru Police withdraw anti-helmet drive
- No such relief for two-wheeler riders in Mysuru

Mysuru, Jan.28 (RK&BCT)- Just three days are left for you to purchase an ISI-marked helmet as prescribed by the Bureau of Indian Standards (BIS). For, the city Police, as announced earlier, will launch a drive from Feb.1 to penalise two-wheeler riders and pillion if they are not wearing ISI helmets.

Interestingly, the Bengaluru Traffic Police has decided to withdraw its earlier decision to penalise motorists and pillion riders using substandard helmets without ISI certification.

Just three days prior to the crackdown, which was scheduled to begin on Feb.1, the Bengaluru Traffic Police have withdrawn the initiative following a clarification from the BIS. The Bengaluru Police had written to the BIS seeking clarification on helmets conforming to BIS standards, especially with regards to half-face helmets and imported ones.

In its reply, the BIS had stated that the ISI mark can be used by only those helmet manufacturers who are having a valid BIS certification mark licence. It also stated that the authenticity of the ISI mark cannot be confirmed by visual examination and it has to be sent to the BIS for checking or to the manufacturers.

Following the BIS reply, the Bengaluru Traffic Police have decided to abort their drive. It's not just motorcyclists who have got a reprieve in Bengaluru, Traffic Police, too, are relieved as they were not looking forward to altercations with motorcyclists.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

The year was 1948. I was just a tiny tot. My father gifted me a ball-point pen from Singapore. In India, the ball pen was rare.

With the "inkless pen" in hand, I barged into my classroom with pomp and pride. The best feature of the pen was that it did away with the cumbersome process of refilling it with ink. I was stunned on noticing the reaction among my schoolmates. "Amazing!" exclaimed one of my pals. This was soon followed by a flood of submissions for a trial of the "inkless pen", a prodigious object in their eyes. Affixing a signature with this innovating writing material captivated their imagination.

Soon I launched a barter system which yielded rich dividends. I had never tasted any junk food as my mother had forbidden it. Requests for using the pen were conceded on the spot in return for a variety of eatables. I filled my stomach with popcorn, popsicle and nuts. I wrote and wrote endlessly. While it was all smooth sailing, all of a sudden my prized possession was stuck, disobeying my command to write. Every effort to resuscitate it proved futile. Drunk.

I never realised about the "refill". I was a distilled idiot, I presumed a ball pen would never go dry. Once a precious possession, the pen was now just junk.

Rubbing salt to my wound, my mother lashed me with her words for consuming junk food. On introspection, a glorious message flashed across my mind. Is it joy or sorrow? Both are ephemeral. Emerson was right when he said, "God is playing fool on us." Everything is impermanent. Then "Which is permanent?" Answering this nagging question the renowned philosopher Dr. J. Krishnamurthy brilliantly answered "Nothing is permanent. 'Search for permanency' alone is permanent."

Believe it or not it's a tattoo!

Warsaw: At just 30-years-old, Karol Rybakowski is already one of the biggest names in the world of tattoos, and looking at some of his works, it's pretty easy to see why. His portrait tattoos look as if a picture has been slapped on the subject skin, and in many cases they turn out even better than the photos that inspired them.

It won't surprise you to learn that Karol Rybakowski studied painting at the Academy of Fine Arts, in Warsaw, before becoming a tattoo artist. There was a particularly heated debate surrounding his tattoo of Bradley Cooper as sniper Chris Kyle in "American Sniper" with many people claiming that it looked too good to be true. It was only a matter of time until people realized the young Polish tattoo artist was just that good, but people question whether his work is legit. I for one cannot blame them, some of these just tattoos look to be true. Rybakowski is currently working at the Ink-Ognito studio in Rybnik, Poland, alongside fellow tattoo legend Tofi Torfinski, but also attends tattoo-related events all around the world.

Fizzy drinks make him toothless

London: Michael Sheridan, a father-of-three from Ashbourne, whose teeth had almost rotted away completely due to his addiction to sweet fizzy drinks has recently been gifted a brand new smile by a dentist who noticed his excruciating pain when trying to take a bite from a sandwich. Sheridan's addiction was so severe that he would experience headaches and shakiness if he didn't have a fizzy drink within half an hour of waking up every day. As his teeth began to rot, he would lay awake most nights in agony from toothaches. Over time he grew ashamed of his teeth and would hide his smile from even his partner and children. Things took a turn for the better recently when dentist Dr. David Murnaghan, who knew Sheridan through club, took notice of the problem, he who arrange the appointment, which took place last November. Last week he visited Boyne Dental & Implant Clinic where he had all 27 of his teeth removed in one sitting. He is now wearing removable dentures.

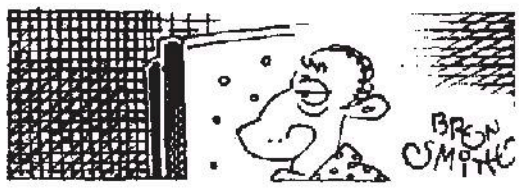
Why does staying up late at the computer affect my sleep?



When light from a TV or computer screen goes into your eyes and stimulates your brain, it s blocks production of melatonin, your sleep hormone. To 'hack' the problem, wear ambertinted sunglasses when you're looking at a computer screen at night. They block the blue light that causes the problem.

Where does money collected as fines go?

Sir,

Of late, Mysuru City Traffic Police are earning a substantial amount as fines collected from traffic rule violators. As long as we have irresponsible parents and disobedient children, Traffic Police will have their coffers filled with money collected as fines. And probably with so many "operations" by the Traffic Police, the income from the fines levied would have definitely exceeded their budgetary expectations.

Many projects like installation of traffic signal lights at the intersection of Sayyaji Rao Road and Irwin Road, opposite Ayurveda Hospital and at the "T" junction of Gokulam Road and Hunsur Road are examples for issues being postponed owing to lack of funds as per the version given by the authorities concerned.

Since signal lights are not installed at these vantage points, motorists are facing a lot of hardship owing to high density of indisciplined motorists. By installing signal lights, the unruly traffic can be contained to a great extent at these two junctions.

Government withdraws controversial circular on criminal cases

Ramalinga Reddy

Bengaluru, Jan. 28- The Home Ministry yesterday withdrew the controversial circular issued by the office of the Director-General and Inspector-General of Police (DG&IGP) to heads of all districts on dropping cases registered against "innocent minorities," claiming that it was a "clerical error."

The circular, which had riled the BJP that said it amounted to "minority appeasement," was recalled and the department issued a revised version instead, dropping the word "minorities" and inserted "all innocent people."

Speaking to press persons yesterday, Home Minister R. Ramalinga Reddy said that the notice was issued only in the context of implementation of the Sachar Committee recommendations. The Cabinet sub-committee constituted for implementation of the committee recommendations had sought information from all Police officials on cases registered against those from minority community.

Revoking cases against innocent people from minority community was among the several recommendations of the committee report, which the sub-committee headed by Minister for Health and Family Welfare K. R. Ramesh Kumar sought to implement. In this context, a note was originally sent on December 22, 2017 to all the Police officials concerned, followed by a reminder on January 25, 2018, the Home Minister clarified.

Nonetheless, the department has now issued a revised notice, as the Government is open to withdrawing cases against innocent people from all communities, not just with regard to communal clashes, but also in cases of Cauvery, Mahadayi, and farmers protests, Reddy said.

"Let the organisations concerned send us an appeal and we will consider them all," he said, referring to pro-Hindutva outfits. However, if it was a case of murder, attempt to murder or damage to property, the cases could not be dropped, irrespective of which community the accused belonged to, he added.

'Don't register case for drunken driving'

The Home Minister who conducted a review meeting with Senior Police Officials, directed the officials not to register cases under Section 283 for drunken driving and instead stick to imposing penalty.

The Minister said a huge number of such drunken driving cases were leading to a statistical and misleading increase of crime rate in the State.

"There have been 43,000 such cases registered for drunken driving," he added.

Kurubarahalli Survey No. 4, Alanahalli Survey No. 41 row

Residents threaten to boycott polls

Mysuru, Jan. 28 (PM&DM)- Strongly condemning the apathy of Government officials, residents of Siddarthanagar, K.C. Layout and other localities coming under Kurubarahalli Survey No. 4 and Alanahalli Survey No. 41 have urged Chief Minister Siddharamaiah to show keenness on solving this land issue.

Addressing a press meet here yesterday, Linganna a member of Samaja Seva Trust, said that though Chief Minister Siddharamaiah had given directions to officials to solve the issue of residents, the officials are not taking any necessary step in this regard Urging the officials to resolve the issues at the earliest, he said that residents residing in these survey numbers, which include Kurubarahalli, Alanahalli, K.C. Layout, J.C. Nagar and Siddarthanagar, will boycott the forth coming Assembly polls.

Explaining the difficulties faced by the residents, Linganna maintained that Kurubarahalli Survey No. 4 and Alanahalli Survey No. 41 have been erroneously classified as 'B' kharab land.

The CM had directed the officials to look into the possibilities of declassifying these two Survey numbers of land from 'B' kharab and thus come to the rescue of residents. But nothing has happened since almost an year after the CM's direction, he alleged.

Pointing out that the residents residing in these Survey numbers were not getting bank loans and could not dispose off their land, Linganna said that the residents and land owners in the two Survey numbers don't even have title deeds in their names.

Stating that the Layouts in the two Survey members were formed by Mysuru Urban Development Authority (MUDA) and the Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) has been collecting property taxes from the residents, he urged the CM to follow up on the directions given by him to the officials, until the row is resolved.

The Trust members and residents Umesh, Girish, Prasanna and others were present.

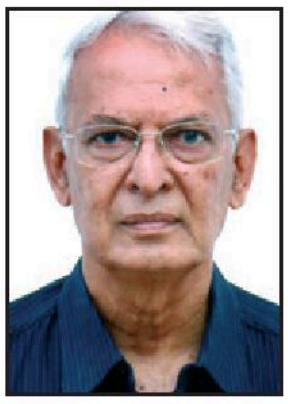
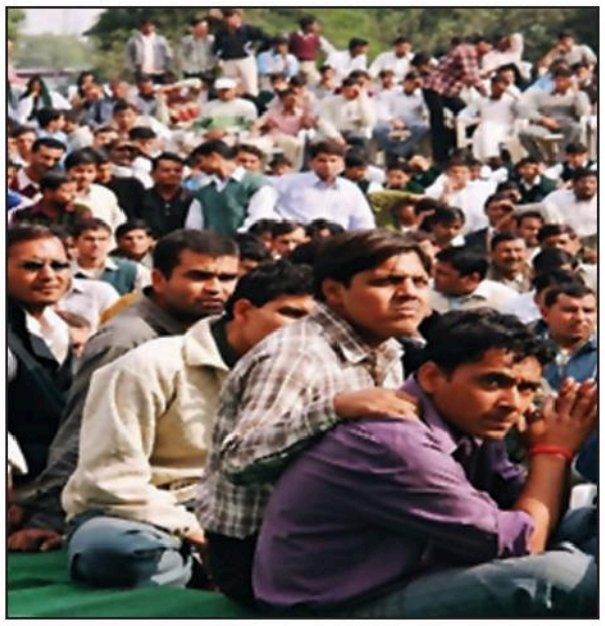
A crisis in the making

Findings of NGO Pratham's Annual Status Education Report paint a grim picture that needs attention



By Ashvini Ranjan

Adam Smith, the 18th-century philosopher who is considered the father of modern economics, observed that the wealth of a nation is not merely that which is measured in terms of precious metals or other forms of tangible assets, but its productive capacity to expand the markets. What he implied was the potential and the ability of its people to produce goods and services to create wealth.



Though his theory was enunciated more than two-and-a-half centuries ago, it holds good to this day - probably even more so. Unless the people of a country are skilled, qualified and able-bodied, economic wealth can neither be created nor sustained. India is a country of 1.3 billion people. The average age of the majority (64%) of its people is less than thirty years, making it the youngest country in the world - an age which is considered as most productive. But are our people physically fit with adequate nutrition, basic education and skills to be productive and compete with other economies of the world?

PRATHAM'S SURVEY FINDINGS

It is in this context that one needs to examine the findings of the 2017 report released by NGO Pratham's Annual Status Education Report (ASER) based on a nationwide sample survey — a survey to evaluate the status of education of the youth in rural India. Consistently, surveys have revealed that our education system focuses on rote learning rather than comprehension, critical thinking and problem solving. There is little room left for creativity.

Pratham's reports have repeatedly expressed concerns about student learning outcomes, teacher training and curriculum quality. Most of the resources and research have been directed to increasing enrolment of students into schools than improving the quality of education. But the findings have not resulted in any major policy change by the governments to improve the quality of education.

BEYOND BASICS

The 2017 Pratham survey however, focused for the first time on the youth between the age group of 14 to 18 years - the age group that is getting ready to enter the job market. The survey examined 30,000 youth in 25,000 rural households in 28 districts in 24 states. In Karnataka, the survey was conducted in 60 villages with the help of the University of Mysore.

The percentage of youth who could read a class 2 level text books in Kannada was 72.9% only. In other words, one in four young people could not read a level 2 lesson in their own language. Only 55% could read a few sentences in English. While majority were conversant with operating a mobile phone, over 57% struggled to do a basic division sum. Even more shocking, 14% could not identify the map of India, 36% could not name the country's capital. 21% could not tell the name of the State they lived in.

DIGITAL LITERACY

While the Central and State governments have been stressing on moving to digital transactions in a big way, the ground reality showed otherwise.

As per the survey findings, only 20.2% of them have used an ATM while only 6.3% have tried Internet Banking. Digital literacy is seen as a tool to unlock opportunities in today's world. But the percentage of people who have used Internet is a paltry 18% and those who have basic knowledge of computers is less than 17%. But 66.5% of the youth have used mobile phones.

CONSEQUENCES OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Youth not engaged in work due to lack of employable skills or whose aspirations remain unfulfilled are prone to resort to anti-social activities and even crime for a living. This is evident from the reports one reads about groups of youth termed 'fringe elements' who resort to violence at the behest of their masters. It may not be wrong to deduce that these groups are just unemployed youth whose services are available for a price. And these numbers are growing by the day.

Let us also not forget technology is making rapid strides. Machines are fast replacing human beings at workplaces. Given a choice, industry will prefer automation to human beings who come with innumerable challenges. Machines are more dependable in terms of discipline and productivity. They work 24x7 without a break and don't fall sick or go on a strike.

WAY FORWARD

The government needs to come to grips with the gravity of the situation and make course corrections. Political leadership, industry and labour must brainstorm on an urgent basis to find a way forward. A new thinking needs to be initiated to address the problem from all angles. Not just in terms of education and skills to the youth but also to contain the rapid raise in our population. Not knee-jerk short-term solutions but a long-term realistic plan to avoid a crisis situation.

A SILVER LINING

It is comforting to note that Government of Karnataka like a few other States in the country has invited NGOs with experience and expertise in the space of primary and secondary education to join hands to improve the quality of education in govt schools. However, much depends on the rank and file in the teacher fraternity to collaborate and implement the new methodologies and learning content both in letter and spirit. Pratham too is one such partner in the cause.

However small this collaboration may appear, a beginning has been made. There is a long way to go before tangible results can be seen. More and more such collaborations and initiatives are required to equip our young to lead a gainful and respectable life. Failing which, the demographic dividend which we are gifted with will soon become a bane than a boon.

In her complaint to the Udayagiri Police (CR No. 20/18), Sub-Inspector has alleged that the channel reporter had cheated her.

Udayagiri Inspector P.P. Santhosh has registered a case under IPC Sections 376 (rape), 354 (assault on woman with intent to outrage her modesty), 420 (cheating) and 496 (marriage ceremony fraudulently gone through without lawful marriage).

But there is no such relief for two-wheeler riders in Mysuru and riders will be penalised from Feb.1 if they do not have ISI helmets. Speaking to Star of Mysore this morning, Mysuru City Police Commissioner Dr. A Subrahmanyeswara Rao said that a penalty of Rs. 100 will be levied from Feb.1.

When asked about the Bengaluru Traffic Police's decision not to launch the drive from Feb.1, he said, "People should not have any doubts about the helmet drive. They are supposed to follow rules as per the Motor Vehicles Act. We will strictly enforce the rules and violators have to cough up a fine of Rs. 100 from Feb. 1," he said. There is a lot of confusion regarding the authenticity of ISI-mark helmets sold in the market and imported helmets, which do not have ISI-mark, and this has baffled both the Cops and riders. With some helmet manufacturers selling duplicate brands with ISI mark, the lengthy process of identifying them has made the Policemen's job difficult and buyers too fall prey to such fake brands.

Melbourne, Jan.28- Indo-Hungarian tennis pair Rohan Bopanna and Timea Babos went down in a closely contested Australian Open mixed doubles final, losing 6-2, 4-6, 9-11 to eighth seeded Croatian-Canadian pairing of Mate Pavic and Gabriela Dabrowski at the Rod Laver Arena in Melbourne this morning.

This was Bopanna's third Grand Slam final, only to lose it in one hour and eight minutes at the Melbourne Park.

After pushing the contest into the decider, Pavic and Dabrowski took an early lead in the super tie-break. However, the fifth seeds fought back well to not just level the contest but also take lead in the decider.

But the Croat-Canadian combine showed pure grit to clinch the contest at the end.

Bopanna had won the 2017 French Open mixed doubles title with Dabrowski, who was his opponent today. The Indian had also reached the men's doubles final at the 2010 US Open with Pakistan's Aisam-ul-haq Qureshi. They eventually lost to the Bob and Mike Bryan of the United States.

Today at 2 pm (IST), Roger Federer targets 20th Grand Slam title against Marin Cilic in the Men's Single.

The origins of Republic

Indians celebrated Republic Day, popularly known as Ganarajyotsava with all solemnity and patriotism that it deserved. Years ago, I was in Delhi for some official work with Union Public Service Commission and I got a pass to witness the great spectacle of Ganarajyotsava from a vantage point and that is still green in my memory even after many years.

Republic Day has a great antiquity going back to early times in various parts of the world. In fact the celebrated Greek Philosopher Plato was perhaps the one who wrote on the connotation of Republic and very interestingly, the name of that work is 'Republic'. According to him, in a Republic the political power of a country rests with elected representatives who are given the responsibility of running the government having welfare of people in mind. In popular parlance, it is government of the people, by the people and for the people and this is the basis of modern democracy. What a splendid and meaningful idea.

The ancient Roman Government was called a Republic for namesake by many scholars but actually it was aristocracy. It was under the guidance of people who were nobles called patricians by contemporary people. Actually, it was a government by the people who were born in higher lineage. Still they maintained that they were following Republican form of Government.

Ancient Greece was also a good example for Republican form of Government. However, in this government, the political power was confined to some groups of citizens. Italians had oligarchy form of Government which means that only limited number of people could participate in running the State.

France was basically a democracy in the modern period and it was a Republican form of Government. India was basically a democratic country after the British left us and is considered as a big democracy which, in other words, is also termed as a Republic or Ganarajya.

The main character of this form of Government is that no particular group (not a party) is empowered in this form of Government. Within the framework of the Constitution all youngsters above a particular age can elect a government through representatives which in modern parlance is Members of Parliament, the Legislative Assembly or Legislative Council. Even the communists call themselves as Republics because every citizen has an opportunity to be a part of it. This is a matter of interpretation.

When Oliver Cromwell came to power in Britain, he called it Commonwealth which means it is good for everybody or all citizens. Cromwell called it as the first Republic among the English speaking world. Its main motto was the good of all people and equal opportunity for all people immaterial of caste, creed and nationality. Poor or rich do not matter in this form of Government.

As already mentioned, historians have called the Roman Government as the first Republican form of government. It has no king or emperor but the power rests with the entire community of people. Some scholars have called Greek city states as Republics of the ancient period. The main character of this form is equality of all people and sharing power or responsibility of government by one and all in general with some conditions.

During middle between 14th and 16th centuries, many Republics came into being because of Renaissance period which brought in new thinking in social and administrative matters. The governments in Venice and Florence were in the hands of rich people. However, it was run by elected representatives. But the voice of elected representatives was not given proper importance. It was believed by the nobles and rich people that good and competent people could not be elected for various reasons. And this is happening throughout the world wherever democracy functions. No political scientist has been able to give solutions to this malady.

In the 20th century, lot of encouragement was given to Republican form of government. After the First World War, many European States came under the administration of despots or dictators. They called themselves neither despots nor republics but ruled the countries with iron hand. Even after the Second World War many countries called themselves as Republics only in name.

Republics were not confined to other countries of the world. And ancient India also had a major role to play. Many scholars have studied this problem in detail. According to them, monarchy was the popular form of Government in ancient India. The Sabhas and Samitis of the Vedic period can be equated with Republics of the modern period allowing for the modern changes.

The legends found on the seals and coins reading Malava Ganasya Jayah (Victory to Malava Gana, Yaudheya Ganasya Jayah) are especially noteworthy. From these references it becomes clear that the term Gana had a clear meaning and connotation in ancient India. At times the word Sangha also was used to denote a Gana.

Kautilya's Arthashastra has discussed this problem in detail and in addition to monarchical form of government, he has given a high place to Ganarajya, in which peoples' representatives are given important place. But he gives certain precautions for the election of representatives and that responsibility is given to the people who elect their representatives. He also considers it as a duty of the government to see that candidates of good character, non-corrupt and with other virtues be permitted to contest elections. Otherwise chaos will set in and enemies will take advantage.

January 26, 1950 is a red-letter day for India. On that momentous and auspicious day, at about 10.20am Babu Rajendra Prasad signed this document which made us into a Ganarajya or a Republic. Every year on 26th January, we celebrate this great event. Perhaps 15th August and 26th January every year are sacred days for Indians.

Burning Garbage at Rajiv Nagar 3rd Stage

On a regular basis at Rajiv Nagar 3rd Stage, near 100 ft. road, around 5 pm to 6.30 pm one can see thick black smoke from a few kilometres distance. There are some people who set fire to garbage as shown in the picture. Upon further inquiry, it was learnt that the City Corporation authorities are putting this fire as they are unable to dispose of the garbage scientifically, says one of the SOM readers W. Shariff, who sent us this picture. First of all, MCC authorities should make it a practice to dispose the garbage rather than becoming over-active during Swachh Bharat inspection. Will the authorities concerned wake up and stop this menace immediately?

Open Manhole at J.P. Nagar

One of our readers from J.P. Nagar sent this above picture with a note saying: "During my evening walk close to Government Hospital in J.P. Nagar, I noticed some children busy with something on the middle of the road. As I approached them I learnt that a manhole cover had collapsed and these kids were covering the open manhole with tree branches and were placing a paper written 'DANGER' on it, to alert people who pass by. The sense of urgency to alert people that these children had was what the authorities concerned lack, is what struck my mind that moment."

Lingayat leaders want to take on CM in Chamundeshwari

Mysuru, Jan.28- Members of the Lingayat community who are pitted against each other over the raging Lingayat-Veerashaiva issue have resolved to take on Chief Minister Siddharamaiah in the electoral battle from Chamundeshwari Constituency.

At a meeting jointly convened by Veerashaiva Lingayat Hitarakshana Vedike and Mysuru district unit of Akhila Bharata Veerashaiva Mahasabha here on Saturday, prominent leaders of the community resolved to seek the support of former PM and JD(S) supremo H.D. Deve Gowda to accomplish their task.

Veerashaiva Lingayat Hitarakshana Vedike President C.P. Thammanna speaking to press persons said that the meeting discussed at length on how the growth of leaders from the community, at Chamundeshwari Constituency in particular, was scuttled with the rise of Siddharamaiah.

It was all due to the support of H.D. Deve Gowda as both were in the same party then. Now, Gowda should extend his support to the community by fielding a Lingayat candidate from Chamundeshwari in the upcoming Assembly polls, he said.

The meeting also resolved to demand political parties to give due preference to community leaders in Assembly segments such as Chamundeshwari, Varuna, K.R. and Periyapatna in Mysuru district, Gundlupet and Hanur in Chamarajanagar district and Melukote in Mandya district.

The meeting also decided to hold a convention at Jaganmohan Palace in city on Feb. 19, followed by a divisional-level convention in March.

Former MLA H.C. Basavaraj, former ZP President K.N. Puttabuddhi, former ZP Vice-President A.S. Channabasappa and other prominent leaders attended the meeting.

WORD OF THE DAY

Maladroit

Pronunciation: adjective[mal-uh-droit]

Meaning: Unskillful; awkward; bungling; tactless.
Origin: English maladroit is a direct borrowing from French. The first element, mal-, is from the French adverb and combining form mal- "badly, ill," from the Latin adverb male with the same meaning. The second element is the French adjective adroit "skillful, deft," in origin a prepositional phrase à droit (also à dreit) "by or according to right; correctly." The element à is from Latin ad "to, up to, towards." Dreit (droit) is the French development of Vulgar Latin drectum, drictum "straightened, straight," from Latin directum, derectum "straight, right." Maladroit entered English in the 17th century.

THE ODD WORD

Impish

Mischievous. Inclined to do slightly naughty things for fun.
"He approached her with an impish grin on his face."

PHRASE OF THE DAY

Raining cats and dogs

Meaning: Too much heavy rain.
Example: It was raining cats and dogs so all flights were cancelled and I could not reach in time to my native town to join the marriage ceremony of my brother.
Origin: The most initial usage of this idiomatic expression was found in 17th century; since then it's remained one of the most popular English idioms. But, there are no valid clues of where and who originally discovered this phrase. The expression might have its origin in Norse mythology, medieval superstitions, the outdated word Catadupe (waterfall), or dead animals in the streets of Great Britain being picked up by rainstorm waters.
